PREFACE.

The American Catalogue of 1876 is the monument of Frederick Leypoldt. For many years it was his chief purpose in life to lay the foundation of an American bibliographical system on which there might be built a structure worthy of the future of literature in this country. With what enthusiasm, at what cost, he pursued that purpose, so far as it was given him to do, only those nearest to him can ever know. When he died, at the close of a life which was short measured in years but long measured by the work which was crowded into it, he had accomplished indeed only the foundation, and the fulfilment of his plans rests with others.

It is the bibliographer who of all men has most occasion to realize the imperfection of human endeavor. Completeness in bibliography is an ignis fatuus that eludes even the closest pursuit and the most painstaking accuracy. The American Catalogue of 1876, more than most publications, was subject to this difficulty, and no one appreciated it more keenly than Mr. Leypoldt. The earlier work of Roorbach and Kelly had been most useful in its way, but it had attempted only very modest and circumscribed results. Those who took up the work of compiling a catalogue of the books in print and for sale in this country at the date of July 1st, 1876, had not only the most imperfect, but the most misleading, material to deal with, the first consequence of which was a delay as costly as are delays proverbially, putting out of the question any hope of pecuniary return. The burden which Mr. Leypoldt took upon himself was indeed a heavy one intellectually, but it was still heavier financially, and when he died the enterprise had not only failed to pay him a penny for his own labor, but had involved an actual loss in money amounting to some thousands of dollars. The delay was caused chiefly by the incompleteness and inaccuracy of publishers' catalogues, on which the work itself was based, and by the difficulty of learning the facts as to the volumes issued by the small publishers scattered throughout this wide land. That so few imperfections and omissions were found in the Catalogue is the greatest of all compliments both to its editor and to its compilers.

The original scheme of the enterprise included the issue, at intervals of about five years, of additional volumes containing the full record of publications in America from the issue of the previous volume. The present is the first of that series. The very serious delay in the original Catalogue, caused by the search among the smaller publishers, made it absolutely necessary that the present work should be at least based upon the bibliographical record of the "Publishers' Weekly," the organization of which had been continuously improved to make it represent fairly the actual book production of this country. Mr. Leypoldt's own conception of the work, after the discouragement of the previous volumes, seemed to have been limited to this record; but it is difficult to speak with certainty on this point, and, in fact, the chief difficulty in planning and editing the present work has come from the suddenness with which he was called away from his labors without opportunity to record in full his own plans. The present editor has, however, endeavored to supply as many gaps as practicable outside of that record; but it was not practicable to postpone the work until such search among the smaller publishers as was made in 1876 could be again made, for in that case the work would not have been issued until it would have been virtually out of date.

As it is, the first alphabet was issued in November, 1884, within four months of the time at which the entries stopped, — a promptness which is believed notable in the history of cataloguing, — and the second is finished in March, 1885. The present work follows essentially the plan of the original AMERICAN CATALOGUE. The first alphabet contains the entry under author's name and the entry under first word of title in the case of novels, juveniles, plays and poems, and of other works whose title is not essentially a subject-title. The second alphabet contains the entry under specific subject, novels, juveniles, plays, etc., of course excepted. These two alphabets have been paged separately and duplicate title-pages furnished, so that the work may be bound either as one volume or two, according to the subscriber's individual pleasure and convenience. The CATALOGUE embraces reprints, such importations as are kept in stock, publications of learned societies, the law reports of the United States and State courts, and, in an appendix, the Government publications within certain limits. It has not been attempted to include local directories, periodicals, sheet-music, books chiefly blank, unbound maps, tracts, and other low-priced pamphlets.

The present editor has attempted, as stated, to fill such gaps in the bibliographical record of the "Publishers' Weekly" as became evident, particularly in the case of the "cheap libraries," which were not recorded as books in the "Publishers' Weekly" until some years after their start. Doubtless, however, a great number of issues from the smaller and subscription publishers have not been covered, despite several endeavors in this direction. Every effort has been made to reach publishers, through the "Publishers' Weekly," by direct circulars, and by invitation on the covers of the separate parts of the CATALOGUE itself, so as to secure the completion of the CATALOGUE by the supply of missing entries. So far as this material came to hand it is given in the last pages of the work. It is hoped that any publisher who notices the omission of any book will send the full bibliographical particulars to the office of the "Publishers' Weekly," where it will be properly registered for future use, and that he will hereafter supply, week by week, either his books as issued, or the necessary bibliographical transcripts of their titles. It has not been attempted in the present volume to follow mere changes of publishers, or changes in price of works, entered in the AMERICAN CATALOGUE of 1876. It proved on inquiry that their importance would not justify the space they required and the delay that would be necessitated in procuring them. Whatever omissions may be found, it is hoped that the CATALOGUE, with all its imperfections, may be of definite and decided value to users of books, and may be another step toward a more perfect bibliographical system in the immediate future.

The remarkable feature of American book-production within the period covered by this CATALOGUE has been the issue of the "cheap libraries." As has been stated, these were not at first registered in the "Publishers' Weekly," and this CATALOGUE had progressed some pages before the present editor discovered that Mr. Leypoldt's plan had not included them in his collection of material for it. A, B, and C, therefore, are imperfect as regards earlier numbers of the "Franklin Square," the "Seaside," and other libraries, but thereafter the publisher's lists of these libraries have been used, and it is hoped the record is approximately complete. In a number of cases there have been changes of price, which it has been difficult to follow. Where changes have been discovered in the case of new editions the latest price has as a rule been given. In addition to the well-known libraries there has been a great variety of other series, many of them trashy and sensational literature of the baser sort. Some of these series it has not been practicable to include within the limits of this CATALOGUE; for the most part they are sold by newsdealers as periodicals rather than by booksellers as books.

The treatment of Government publications has been one of the great problems of the present CATALOGUE. Since October, 1882, the "Publishers' Weekly," by arrangement with gentlemen of the Smithsonian Institute working beyond their salaried hours, has printed a quarterly list of Government issues, a list which from January, 1885, is given monthly. It was at first proposed to include in the body of the CATALOGUE, Government publications during the eight years, and to treat them topically in the second alphabet. This, however, would not have been practicable without delaying the whole work probably for at least six months. It was then planned to include all such titles in an appendix at the end of the work. Careful inquiry, including personal visits to Washington on the part of the editor, proved, however, that the material even for this was not in satisfactory shape, the Smithsonian and other records having been properly organized only since 1880. Moreover, the Government, at an expenditure already amounting to $50,000 for editorial and kindred labor, had caused to be compiled an approximately complete list of issues of the Government from its beginning through the session of Congress which terminated in March, 1881. That important volume, edited by Mr. B: Perley Poore, may be expected during the present year. The plan adopted, therefore, was to provide a continuation of the record of that volume (beginning, however, with the even date, January 1, 1881) up to July 1, 1884.

The separate lists of "series" and of publishing societies, also following the second alphabet, were determined upon at the last moment, in pursuance of the example of similar features in the English Catalogue. The individual volumes of the series, entered, as a rule, under author and title in the body of the work, will be found grouped in the publishers' own catalogues in the "Publishers' Trade-List Annual." The publications of societies are given under their names, whenever responses to the circular letter, addressed to all, brought the necessary data, or the information could be got otherwise. It is hoped that both these features may be worked out more fully in future volumes.

The list of publishers, which prefaces the first alphabet, gives the names of all whose books are entered in the main alphabet or the appendix. In the large cities street addresses (the latest) are given so far as possible, and where no addresses are given it is because most careful inquiry through the postal authorities and otherwise has failed to give trace. The name on the title-page of a book is the one always given in the catalogue; changes of firm are traced as far as practicable in the prefatory list. Many entered as publishers are, of course, State or other printers or authors printing only their own books.

The methods of entry are detailed in the notes facing each alphabet and the list of Government publications. The entries, as in the original AMERICAN CATALOGUE, are generally in conformity with American bibliographical custom, following, as far as possible, the rules of the American Library Association. It has not been practicable, however, to give the size in exact letters, instead of the indefinite numbers, as it is hoped to do in future volumes. The main entry should be sought under the author's name, or, in the case of anonymous books, under first word of title, the other title-entries and the subject-entries being more abridged. The small figures give the whole number of the "Publishers' Weekly" in which the original full entry is to be found; an accompanying asterisk signifies that a descriptive note on the book will also be found there. This is a feature of the CATALOGUE to which the editor calls the particular attention of readers and students, as a bound set of the "Publishers' Weekly" can be found in most large libraries and in many bookstores.

The arrangement in the subject volume is by specific subjects; not by general classes. Books upon kindred topics are not grouped under a general heading, but each is placed under the particular subject of which it treats. There are many cases of books with obscure, ambiguous, or meaningless titles, in which it has been impossible, in the absence of the books themselves, to determine with certainty their specific subjects; they have been placed under general subjects where these were evident, but in many cases there have doubtless been mistakes, and perhaps ludicrous mistakes. For the reason stated it has not been practicable to await publishers' replies to specific questions as to such books. The editor will be glad to receive any corrections in this as well as in other respects. The user of the subject alphabet should remember, in general, that by reference to a more general heading he will often find what might otherwise escape him on the specific subject or kindred topics. In searching for books on specific subjects the extended catalogue of bibliographic aids, prepared by Mr. Leypoldt personally, as a preface to the subject volume of the original AMERICAN CATALOGUE, is still of the greatest value, and should be consulted by the student.

The editor of the present volume, after recognizing first of all the primary obligation of this work to its founder, desires to acknowledge the very great service of Miss Augusta I. Appleton, of Boston, who, by the courtesy of Mr. C: A. Cutter, of the Boston Athenæum, obtained leave of absence from that library to give her experience and trained skill to the work of compilation. Her chief assistant has been Miss M. B. Joy, to whose carefulness and good judgment much of the value of the work is due. The original bibliographical record of the "Publishers' Weekly," upon which this is chiefly based, was compiled by Miss M. M. Monachesi, who has been the writer also of the valuable descriptive notes, and Mr. Adolphus Growoll, of that office, also deserves cordial acknowledgment for his work in the collection of material. A number of publishers, booksellers, and librarians have also kindly given their help in making the work approximately complete.

The AMERICAN CATALOGUE is the crown and completion of the bibliographical system centred in the "Publishers' Weekly" office. This starts from the weekly record, in which are entered the full titles of all books received or of which information is sent by publishers, and for it the most careful means are taken to ferret out information as to books of which any indication can be found. This list includes the valuable series of descriptive notes in the case of all books received. Its material is used, secondly, for the monthly reference list, which includes entry by author, title, and subject, indexing the books of each month, and is now given in the "Publishers' Weekly" in the first number of the succeeding month. Thirdly, annual lists will be found in the index to the "Trade List Annual," in which are reprinted also the full weekly records of the "Publishers' Weekly," from July 1 through June 30 of each year. Fourthly and finally, the AMERICAN CATALOGUE in its five-yearly volumes completes the permanent record. It is probable that the next volume will include the years 1884 to 1890, so that thereafter the volumes may correspond with the decade periods. The bibliographical publications of that office also include the "Library Journal," the organ of the library interests, the quarterly "Index to Periodicals," continuing Poole's Index, and the "Literary News," which connects bibliographic work with the great mass of readers.

The great work of Mr. Leypoldt, and the series of which it is hoped the present volume is the precursor, by no means fulfil the ideal which that great bibliographer, and the successor to whom falls the duty of attempting to fulfil his purposes, would consider adequate and final. The ideal of an American bibliography ought to include in one enormous volume, or a series of volumes, the data of the AMERICAN CATALOGUE of 1876, of these supplementary volumes, and of the earlier works of Roorbach and Kelly, all of which would need to be supplemented by a careful search, with the help of library coöperation, for the titles necessary to complete the record of American publication, at least during the latter half of the nineteenth century. If there shall be found, fifteen years hence, with the close of the century, adequate support for such a work, and a bibliographer bold enough to undertake it, such an American bibliography would form an adequate foundation for five-yearly volumes worthy of the American name. Possibly by that time we shall be near enough to the millennium to find five hundred persons willing to contribute the one hundred dollars each which would be necessary to guarantee the commercial and financial basis for so great an undertaking. In the meantime, however, it is the purpose of the present editor, in connection with the office of the "Publishers' Weekly," to extend the data of American trade bibliography in two directions. He will be glad to receive at that office the data to supply the record of any current titles omitted in the present CATALOGUE or its predecessor, and of others earlier in date not included in Roorbach or Kelly. These will be rewritten in accordance with the general system of the AMERICAN CATALOGUE, and efforts will be made, as occasion permits, to bring this material nearer and nearer to completion. For such a work as this the coöperation of librarians, which has produced the magnificent Index to periodicals edited by Mr. Poole and Mr. Fletcher, will be most helpful. Secondly, the current bibliographical system of the "Publishers' Weekly" itself, from the date of the completion of the present AMERICAN CATALOGUE, will be organized so that all titles can be arranged in one alphabet which shall serve for immediate reference and as the complete "copy" from which to edit a new volume of this work at the close of each five-yearly period. This organization will make it possible to fill out omissions from year to year, and will also serve the immediate purpose of those having occasion to make bibliographical inquiries. Step by step, in this way, we shall ultimately reach an American bibliographical system which will do credit to America.

R. R. BOWKER.

AUTHOR–AND–TITLE ALPHABET

NOTE.

Imprint Entries (chiefly by author). The full entries are given under names of authors when known, — under initials and pseudonyms when the real names have not been ascertained, — under names of editors of collections, — and under governments and names of societies. The order in such full entries is: author; actual title; series name; edition; number of volumes; illustrations; size according to publisher's designation; date, with superior figures referring to that number of the "Publisher's Weekly" in which the entry occurred, an asterisk designating a descriptive note in the same number; binding, if other than cloth; price; and name of publisher, abbreviated as shown in the list of publishers which prefaces the work. Anonymous works are entered under the first word of the title not an article, with the exception that anonymous biographies are entered under the family name of the subject; translations under the author of the original work. The works of married women are given under the latest name known. The works of the following authors, known chiefly by their pseudonymes or maiden names, are, however, entered under the name popularly known, viz.: Bird, Isabella L.; Bronté, Charlotte; Craddock, Charles Egbert; Eliot, George; Gréville, Henry; Harland, Marion; Saintine, X. B.; Sand, George; Thomas, Annie; Werner, Ernst. Transactions, journals, reports and collections of a society are entered under its name; works by individual members, although published by the society, are placed under names of authors. Church constitutions, hymn-books, liturgies, prayer-books, etc., when official, appear under the name of the church society, otherwise under the title; individual churches under the name of the place.

Under "Bible" the entries in the first alphabet include only the text, with or without notes, — that is to say, books of which the writers of the Bible are essentially the authors. Commentaries have been given in the author alphabet under the names of the commentators. The arrangement has been general works, Old Testament, New Testament, New Testament revised version, separate books. In the case of law books: laws, proceedings, reports, etc., have been entered in the author alphabet under the name of the country or State, with reference from the name of compiler, and not repeated in the subject alphabet. In author's name, honorary degrees, etc., are omitted, unless these or the names of places are needed to distinguish different authors of the same name.

Initials and pseudonymes, used as headings, are regarded as real names; the last part being placed first (as A., S. F. — Holm, Saxe). English compound names are usually entered under the last part of the name; foreign ones under the first part. French and English names beginning with a prefix (excepting the French de or d') are entered under the prefix; in all other languages (and in case of the French de or d') they are entered under the part of the name following the prefix. The German diphthongs, ä, ö, ü, are so spelt (excepting when, like Goethe, the author himself used ae, oe, ue), and are arranged as a, o, u. In general, the vernacular usage of the language has been followed, excepting when there was special reason for deviation. In doubtful cases, cross-references indicate the proper heading.

Reference (Title) Entries. — Novels, juveniles, plays and other popular books having characteristic titles, are also entered in brief under the first word of the title not an article; fuller information being given in the author-entry. Additional entries of such series and libraries as are commonly quoted in sets are, as a rule, made under the series-titles.

A single dash indicates the repetition of the preceding heading (author or title); two dashes indicate the repetition of the preceding double heading (two joint authors, or two titles), or of the preceding main and subordinate headings (author and title; title and edition), etc. A shorter dash (–) between prices indicates various prices and bindings ranging between those given. In cross-references a (; —) separates alphabetical headwords. Brackets after a proper name enclose the real name of a pseudonymous writer, the family name of a nobleman, the present name of an authoress; the pseudonym (in quotation marks) of a writer entered under real name, the title (in italics) of a nobleman entered under family name. Brackets are also used to designate what does not appear on the title-page of the book. The date is bracketed when it is not on the title-page, but is inferred from the time of record or from other data. Dates of publication separated by a dash are the years of publication of the first and last volumes of the work or series.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory, and follow as a rule the recommendations of the American Library Association. [Library Journal, March, 1878.] A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: — A: (August, Augustus); B: (Benjamin); C: (Carl, Charles); D: (David); E: (Edouard, Eduard, Edward); F: (Frederic, Friedrich); G: (Georg, George); H: (Heinrich, Henry); I: (Isaac); J: (John, Johann, Jean. masc.); K: (Karl); L: (Louis, Ludwig); M: (Marc, Mark); N: (Nicolas, Nicolaus, Nicole); O: (Otto); P: (Peter); R: (Richard); S: (Samuel); T: (Thomas); U: (Ulrich); W: (William, Willem, Wilhelm). The following abbreviations have also been used: Caro.(Caroline), Cath.(Catherine), Ctte.(Charlotte), Eliz.(Elizabeth), Fes.(Frances), Ha.(Hannah), Marg.(Margaret), Ma.(Mary), Reb.(Rebecca), Sa.(Sarah).

The less evident abbreviations are adpt.(adapted), adv.(anced), anc.(ient), ann.(ual), app.(endix), arr.(anged), coll.(ections), comb.(ining), comp.(iled), conc.(erning), const.(itution), corr.(ected), descrip.(tion), disc.(overy), doc.(ument), doct.(rine), embr.(acing), expl.(ained), hom.(œopathic), ill.(ustrations), imp.(erial), incl.(uding), Leis.(ure), lib.(rary), lit.(erature), man.(ual), mod.(ern), narr.(ative), obs.(ervations), o.p.(out of print), pop.(ular), por.(trait), pref.(ace), prep.(ared), quest.(ion), rel.(ating), resp.(ecting), roxb.(urgh), roy.(al), ser.(ies), sel.(ected), S. (Sunday), sup.(er).
